Sharing Revenue? What You Mean Is Sharing Debt

Your editor has reached the stage in life where his personal conviction that a given action is wrong causes him to say so regardless how many or how important the people who are promoting the action.

The two houses of Congress have finished and will shortly send to President Nixon a bill to provide sharing $30 billion of federal revenue with the states and cities. The initial payout is expected to be $6.3 billion next month.

The President asked for this legislation. It was sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, and both Arkansas senators, John L. McClellan and J. William Fulbright, voted for it.

That sounds like an overwhelming lineup. But the sheer weight of political power means nothing when it collides with arithmetic.

What the federal government is sharing isn't revenue but debt.

And instead of trying to pay something on its staggering debt, as an honest citizen would, the central government is compromising every ethic in the rule book by palming off paper dollars to the state houses and city halls.

When you read that the state and local politicians are going to get $5.3 billions in October you know two things:

1. The Washingtonians have no intention of reducing the federal debt—rather, they are working to increase it.
2. When federal money is diverted wholesale to the state and city politicians of America, you know your income taxes and living costs never will be reduced—in fact you are looking at an ironclad guarantee that they will grow bigger with the years.

From where I sit, that's how it is.

Tanzania forces routed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight or nine Americans and about 50 British nationals were reported detained today in Uganda on grounds that the country "is in a war situation" with forces invading from Tanzania.

A diplomatic source in London said the Americans being held in Kampala during Ugandan-Tanzanian fighting are Peace Corps workers, missionaries, and an Associated Press correspondent. The British detained include at least 10 newsmen.

Uganda reported the invading forces have been routed in two days of fighting and were retreating to the border.

The Ugandan rebels are supporters of former President Milton Obote, whom Amin overthrew in a January 1971 coup. The president told African diplomats Monday in Kampala, his capital.

Prescott man drowns

M.K. Ballard, 80, of Prescott was reported drowned in a stock pond on his property five miles east of Prescott late Monday afternoon. Ballard was a gravel contractor and a long-time resident of Nevada County.

Senate passes bill to aid victims of crime, 'samaritans'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved legislation to compensate victims of crime and the "good Samaritans" who go to their rescue.

The amendment was attached to an omnibus crime bill which passed the Senate by a 74-0 vote Monday. The bill also would make it a federal crime to kill a policeman or fireman.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference to resolve differences.

Arguing for adoption of his proposal, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said government for too long has neglected the victims of violent crimes and others injured while trying to aid them.

In an unusual parliamentary tactic, Mansfield's $15-million plan was passed twice—the first time on its merits and the second time attached to the House-passed omnibus crime measure.

Mansfield said he hoped by this maneuver to get his proposed compensation bill before House-Senate conferees for possible passage this Congress. The House has taken no action on the compensation plan.

The bill would pay victims for medical and burial expenses, loss of earnings and support, therapeutic costs and child-care expenses to enable one parent to work. Victims would not be repaid for property losses but intervenors—the so-called good Samaritans—would be.

The administration reportedly opposes the bill as being premature.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said it would further burden the taxpayer who he said "is innocent in this, too."

Another amendment to the omnibus crime package would make it a federal crime to kill, injure or assault a policeman, fireman or judicial officer because of his official position.

The vote was 46 to 23 in favor of the proposal by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa.

Another provision would establish a federally subsidized group-life insurance plan for state and local policemen, firemen and other public-safety officers. The cost was put at $22 million annually.

Second general to be questioned in VN bombing probe

DENVER (AP) — Senators probing unauthorized U.S. bombing raids against North Vietnam fly to Denver today to question a second general implicated in the case.

Armed Services Committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., and Sens. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., were due to arrive at midmorning to question Maj. Gen. Alton Slay, former 7th Air Force deputy chief of staff for operations and now head of the special training command at Denver's Lowry Air Force Base.

Slay was said to be recovering from a hernia operation at Fitzsimmons Hospital.

He served as deputy to Gen. John D. Lavelle, the 7th Air Force commander who was fired after higher officials learned that he had ordered unauthorized raids.

According to Stennis, Slay was implicated in testimony Friday by Col. Charles Gabriel, commander of the 342nd Reconnaissance Wing at Udorn, Thailand, during the raids last November through March.

Twenty-eight raids involving 147 aircraft hit North Vietnamese targets under the guise of "protective reaction" before renewed heavy bombing of the North was ordered by the White House. The committee is probing the circumstances of the raids as well as the broader question of civilian control of the military.

Booby-trapped package kills Israeli attache

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A booby-trapped package exploded in the Israeli Embassy in London today and killed the Israeli agricultural attache who opened it and injured another man, Scotland Yard reported.

In Beirut, the American Embassy reported the Syrian government has arrested the assistant military attache of the U.S. Embassy in Amman, Jordan. The attache was arrested near the Jordan-Syria border.

The British Foreign Office identified the man killed in today's blast as Agriculture Attache Dr. Ami Schachori in his early 40's. The injured man was not immediately named.

A spokesman said police reports disclosed the package had been mailed to the embassy from Amsterdam. It was not immediately determined to whom the package was addressed.

Scotland Yard has been watching for an incident like this ever since the Munich massacre of 11 members of Israel's Olympic squad Sept. 15 and subsequent Israeli reprisals against Arab guerrillas.

Police quickly cordoned off the private road outside the embassy and refused to allow any members of the public or press through.

American Embassy officials in Beirut reported Syria arrested Maj. Richard Barrett, 36, a native of Laramie, Wyo. on Sept. 9. Diplomatic informants in Beirut said Barrett was arrested at Deraa, the crossing point from Jordan into Syria, and that all efforts to secure his release have thus far been unsuccessful.

No reason for the arrest was given, the sources said, and Syrian officials reached by phone from Beirut said they had no comment.

The American Embassy in Beirut would release no details on Barrett or his family and no direct contact was allowed with Mrs. Barrett at her Beirut hotel.

Meanwhile, the cabinet of the federation of Syria, Egypt and Libya declared aggression on any of the three Arab states will be considered an attack on all and retaliatory action will be swift.

Aggression, "even on one inch of the federal state," will not be permitted to pass without "swift deterrent action," the cabinet said in a statement published in today's Egyptian press.

Syria has been expecting an Israeli attack since Saturday, when the Israelis plunged deep into Lebanon.

Syria, Egypt and Libya joined in a loose federation a year ago. The federal cabinet voiced full support for Lebanon and the Palestinian forces facing recent "Israeli aggression", and expressed the hope that any differences between Lebanon and the guerrillas will be worked out.

Federal grant is approved for Hope

Additional outdoor recreational facilities at Fair Park will be constructed in the near future due to the approval of a $40,813 grant by the Interior Department this week.

The funds will be used for construction of a new bath house, two tennis courts, a multipurpose court and swimming pool accessories.

Gerald Keith, new city manager, said city officials and, especially, Paul Henley, parks director, have been working on the project a long time.

"The federal funds will make it possible for us to upgrade our park facilities," Keith said. "These new improvements will just complement the park facilities that have been built by individuals and civic clubs in Hope."

Livestock show is next week

The 28th annual Third District Livestock Show and Rodeo will be held in Hope Monday through Saturday of next week, according to Royce Pendergrass, president.

Monday, Sept. 25 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce office, the Hope B&PW Club will host a reception for the Fair Queen contestants; the public is invited. A parade through downtown Hope will begin at 4 o'clock.

Immediately following the parade, Lt. Gov. Bob Riley will dedicate the new show building constructed on the fair grounds this year. In addition to Lt. Gov. Riley, a number of other state and local officials are expected to be on hand for the dedication, Pendergrass said.

Sonny Myers Amusement Shows of St. Joseph, Missouri, will have the carnival show again, Pendergrass said. The show promises to bring one of the largest midways ever to play this area. Approximately 25 rides, 5 shows and 30 concessions will be set up.

Monday evening the Fair Queen Contest will be held in the Coliseum. Approximately 12 young ladies from the 17-county area of Third District will vie for the title of Miss Third District Fair Queen. A talent show will be held in conjunction with the Fair Queen contest.

Tuesday will be FFA Day at the fair; this program was instituted only last year and was most successful, Pendergrass said. This year over 2,000 FFA members are expected to participate from 35 FFA Chapters throughout the Third District.

Culmination of the day's activities will be that evening at 8 o'clock when the FFA Jamboree will be held. There will be approximately 15 contests at the Jamboree in which individuals and FFA Chapters will compete. These include a hog-calling contest, girl's goat chase, tug-of-war-contest, and egg toss contest.

Judging will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the open dairy division, (Continued on next page.)

Bulletin

Float competition winners in the Nevada County Fair Parade in Prescott today have been announced by parade officials.

The Bodcaw school placed first in the school category, with Emmet placing second and Willisville taking third place.

In the civic division the Prescott Jaycettes won first place, Prescott B & PW Club, second, and the Prescott Council of Garden Clubs third. Bodcaw school placed first in the over-all division with the Prescott Jaycettes second, and Emmet in third position.

"One Hundred Years in Nevada County" is the theme for the 36th annual fair and parade.

Even queens cry

Two-year-old Kathy Prescott — Little Miss Hempstead County — shed a few tears while having her picture taken. But after having her crown refuse to sit atop her royal "dog-ears" and being accidentally struck on the head by the photographer's camera, perhaps she had a right to cry. Consoling her is Mrs. Larry Carmen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Prescott. (See other photo on next page.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — An escalating crisis in the Middle East, Chinese and Soviet demands for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea, and a bitter debate on terrorism confront delegates from 132 member states as they meet today for the opening of the 27th U.N. General Assembly.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko heads a high-powered Soviet delegation. He is the first of the Big Five foreign affairs chiefs to arrive for the 13-week parley, which 73 foreign ministers are expected to attend.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Sr. Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary, French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and the Chinese foreign affairs vice minister, Chiao Kuan-hua are scheduled to arrive in the next few days.

The critical assembly session convenes under the tightest security precautions since the special 1970 session when heads of state gathered to commemorate the United Nations' 25th anniversary.

As on that occasion, a force of federal Executive Protective Service agents has been sent in from Washington. President Nixon ordered 40 to New York to guard the U.N. missions of 18 Arab countries, Israel and the West German observer following the Munich killing of 11 Israeli Olympic squad members.

The session also meets in the lengthening shadow of a Middle East crisis which observers say has set back chances of a negotiated peace agreement several years.

A perennial item on the assembly agenda, the Middle East problem this year is compounded by Israeli retaliation for the Munich terror attack.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Monday condemned the weekend Israeli incursion into Lebanon, declaring "such acts of violence" were not helpful to solving the crisis by peaceful means.

Waldheim has proposed that the assembly consider "measures to prevent terrorism and other forms of violence," thus possibly assuring the most acrimonious Mideast debate for years.

Aggression has defied U.N. definition for years, and terrorism is expected to produce the same impasse. But the U.S. team under Rogers is expected to press vigorously for action on the Waldheim proposal.

Although China and the Soviet Union differ on the causes of the Mideast crisis, they are expected to perform as rare allies when the Korean issue comes before the assembly.

The Chinese have joined with the Soviet Union and 27 other Communist and nonaligned countries in proposing the ouster of 43,000 American troops from South Korea.

Because of the first tentative contacts between North and South Korea, the assembly last year put off the Korean question until this session.

More on the 'moon' envelopes

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Envelopes carried to the moon by Apollo 15 astronauts were ordered by a NASA official and billed to a businessman then connected with Hughes Enterprises, a printing firm manager says.

John H. Jacobs, manager of the Brevard Printing Co. in Cocoa, said Monday that Harold G. Collins of the Kennedy Space Center ordered 600 envelopes with a special "First Man on the Moon" stamp before the 1971 Apollo 15 mission flown by astronauts David R. Scott, Alfred M. Worden and James B. Irwin.

There were 641 envelopes carried to the moon, according to officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The print shop manager said he actually delivered between 1,000 and 1,200 of the lightweight envelopes because he got more good prints from the press run than he expected.

Some 100 of the Apollo 15 envelopes were delivered to a German stamp dealer, Herman Sieger, after the moon flight and he reportedly sold the envelopes to collectors for $1,500 each.

A $7,000 bank account was opened in Germany for each of the three Apollo 15 astronauts, but NASA said the trio later decided not to accept any money.

But the astronauts were reprimanded by NASA. Irwin resigned from the space program to become a religious missionary. Scott and Worden were dropped from the astronaut corps and reassigned to space agency desk jobs.

Collins, chief of the Mission Support Office at the Kennedy Space Center, refused to comment, saying only, "The Justice Department is investigating and is into it in full swing. We are not even supposed to discuss the matter."

POWs: 24 hours of freedom

HANOI (AP) — After 24 hours of freedom walking around the capital of the country they once regularly bombed, three American pilots looked more relaxed Monday than they had under the movie lights of their release ceremony. They were talking about making the long flight halfway around the world home.

Air Force Maj. Edward Elias looked wistfully toward his fellow pilots, Navy Lt. Norris Charles and Markham Gartley, who were laughing over dinner with their loved ones.

"I sure wish I could get home soon," he said.

Definite plans for their departure from Hanoi have not yet been firm, according to Cora Weiss, co-chairman of the Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam.

"It is in the hands of the Foreign Ministry but I expect to be leaving with the men this weekend," Mrs. Weiss said. The men were released Sunday.

Monday afternoon Charles and his wife Olga planned a quiet stroll around a popular Vietnamese lovers' lane on the edge of a large lake in the middle of Hanoi.

Hundreds of Hanoi residents gathered around them curiously, just watching and saying nothing.

As Minnie Lee Gartley and her pilot son Mark joined them, someone shouted out, "Gartley, Gartley," and the crowd murmured but did not seem antagonistic.

Mrs. Weiss told the pilots later at dinner: "Could you imagine Japanese pilots walking free in New York City after the bombing of Pearl Harbor? This is fantastic."

All the pilots have been speaking freely of their detention, which was four years for Gartley, eight months for Charles and five months for Elias.

Gartley said their food was adequate and the general policy in the camps where he was detained was acceptable.

"We were not penalized in any way when the bombing of North Vietnam was resumed," he said.

The pilots discussed mail and parcel delivery problems with the Committee of Liaison members who came to Hanoi from the United States to escort them home.

Of the three released men, only Charles had come out repeatedly with statements against the war.

"I hope I have made it clear that I am a McGovern man and I feel that only by ending this war will all prisoners come home," Charles said to this reporter Monday evening.

Elias and Gartley have not committed themselves so far on the war, other than to express the hope that their fellow pilots will be released.

Elias said to a television interviewer, "Anything I say here about politics could be later construed as being made under duress, so why say it?"

GOP's positive record is stressed by Agnew

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew began his 1972 model campaign today saying he will stress the positive record of the Republican administration in contrast to "the rather meagre, probably well-intentioned, but often inconsistent and poorly thought out" proposals of George McGovern.

Agnew said in advance he was dropping the hard-line campaign style he used two years ago. His first text was a demonstration of that new look.

"This is our first stop on an intensive campaign that we begin today," Agnew said. He said he intended to focus public attention on President Nixon's programs and policies.

Agnew's initial speech, prepared for the International City Management Association, concentrated on praise for Nixon's "new federalism" proposals, particularly the sharing of federal revenue with state and local governments. A revenue-sharing bill is about to clear Congress.

His text had only a brief mention of the opposition and none by name of McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Agnew's tour will take him to eight states in nine days. And, aides said, the vice president probably will be campaigning four days a week until the Nov. 7 election.

But he apparently is not taking along the dictionary that gave him such epithets as "troglodytic leftists" and "vicars of vacillation" to hurl at Democrats in the 1970 campaign. And gone are the "radical liberals" who used to make up his political demonology. Agnew has said he regrets using that phrase, the keynote of his 1970 campaign, because it was misunderstood.

M.Sgt. Robert Watson, III, USAF, left Friday, September 15 for a 15-month assignment in the Philippines. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson, Jr. of Washington and is a 1961 graduate of Guernsey High School. His wife, Kathie, and three children plan to live in Sacramento, Calif., during his overseas assignment.

Obviously, neither the new Agnew campaign style nor the old was designed by the vice president without the concurrence and instruction of his boss, President Nixon.

As Agnew put it himself, the vice president is "the president's man." He is also the president's campaigner, and a low-key approach fits the current Nixon game plan.

It also casts Agnew in an image far more likely than that of 1970 to help him in any campaign for presidential nomination four years hence.

He said then that he was distressed at "the generalized identity that I received" in the campaigns of 1968 and 1970, and would like to obliterate that.

followed by Junior dairy, registered swine and market swine. Judging of sheep will begin at 2 p.m. An Open Horse Show will be held at 8 p.m. sponsored by the Hope Roundup Club. There will be 15 events in this show.

Thursday, the Quarter Horse Show will be held at 8 a.m. Judging of open beef cattle will begin at 9 a.m. followed by the Junior beef cattle division. At 1:30 fat steer classes will be judged.

Thursday evening marks the first night of the rodeo produced by Wing Ranch of Bogata, Tex. There will be a drawing each evening of the rodeo for a $300 cash prize. The rodeo will continue through Saturday night.

Friday, beginning at 10 a.m., there will be a junior fat calf sale and lamb sale.

Special emphasis has been placed on obtaining a wide variety of exhibits this year which should prove both educational and entertaining. The Art Show has become a bigger and better attraction each year through the efforts of the Third District Arts and Crafts Association, and "this year's show is expected to be quite spectacular," Pendergrass said.

John Schmitz: Stumping through Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — John G. Schmitz, presidential candidate on the American party ticket, categorized the Democratic and Republican parties as "Socialist party A and Socialist party B" in a speech Monday at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

He said the choice was between "a man (President Nixon) who broke all his campaign promises of 1968 and a man (McGovern) everyone is afraid will keep his...a man everyone dislikes."

Schmitz said disagreement between Nixon and McGovern over the Vietnam war was "as phony as a professional wrestling match."

"Nixon wants to surrender on the installment plan and McGovern wants to surrender right away," he said.

Schmitz said the "real issue" on the Vietnam war was that the Nixon administration was providing the "sinews" for conducting the war to both sides.

He said the President could stop the war by telling the Department of Commerce to stop "aid and trade" with the Soviet Union, which he said then could no longer provide the material to North Vietnam to continue the war."

In bringing his candidacy to Arkansas, Schmitz said he was confident that his name will appear on the state's general election ballot. Schmitz, a California congressman, said the party should have "very little difficulty" on appeal in landing a spot on the ballot in Arkansas.

Circuit Court Judge Warren E. Wood of Little Rock ruled last Wednesday that the party had failed in a petition drive to comply with state law to reserve a position on the general election ballot.

"We should do very well in Arkansas," Schmitz said in assessing the party's election chances in a state that gave its electoral votes to the third-party candidacy of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in 1968.

Schmitz guessed that the party's ticket would appear on the ballots of about 41 states, but that he was hopeful that pending litigation would qualify the party for the ballots of all 50.

He also said the party could "make an impact like this country has never seen before" if the television networks and the news services would give the presidential ticket a "break." He said Americans were being told they had only a choice between President Nixon and McGovern.

Schmitz said the country had "moved closer and faster toward totalitarianism" in the four years of the Nixon administration than in any other four-year period of his lifetime.

He said the President tried to keep the image of a "moderate-conservative" but that Americans were being conditioned to believe "what he says rather than what he does." Schmitz said Nixon ran on Wallace's platform in 1968, and "carried out the platform of the Democratic nominee of that year, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey."

The President, Schmitz said, is playing both sides. "If there were two gods, he'd pray to both of them," Schmitz said.

The candidate said he did not think McGovern would "do well" in the South or any other section of the country. He said Nixon rated so high in the polls because the voters were "afraid" of McGovern.

Schmitz renewed his charge that there was a conspiracy in the attempted assassination of Wallace.

He said the American party would become a permanent party. He said the party had been strengthened because it was forced to organize after the shooting of Wallace.

Friday Music Club honors Mrs. McLarty

A luncheon honoring Friday Music Club President, Mrs. James McLarty, was held Saturday, September 16 at the Heritage House. Before the meal was served, a program was presented by Mrs. Helen Hatch who gave a biography of Stephen Foster. Mrs. Paul Henley accompanied herself on the guitar as she sang "Old Folks At Home" and "Camp Town Races." Mrs. Hatch was the piano accompanist for a duet of "Ole Black Joe" by Mrs. Henley and Mrs. Paul Morgan and for Mrs. Morgan's solos, "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair" and "Beautiful Dreamer." Mrs. Henley told of a recent trip to Foster's home in Bardonia, Ky., and all joined in singing the Hymn of the Month, "The God of Abraham Praise." Luncheon chairman, Mrs. Calvin Smith, invited the group into the dining room.

Musical instruments decorated the serving table, where 22 were served. A mandolin and a ukulele were seen on the head table with a bouquet of pastel flowers, and ivy and candles were used for the length of the "T" shaped table. On the buffet was an arrangement of cherubs playing stringed instruments. In addition to the club members, there were four guests, Mrs. Byron Holt, Mrs. Charles Jester, Mrs. Gerald Keith and Mrs. Bob Bledsoe.

"The Orchestra" was the theme of the installation service which Mrs. Frances Reynerson presented after lunch. The conductor was the president, Mrs. James McLarty. Representing musical instruments in the orchestra were the other officers: first vice-president, Mrs. Calvin Smith; second vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Geist; third vice-president, Mrs. G.G. Medders; recording secretary, Mrs. E.A. Pendergraft; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frances Reynerson; treasurer, Mrs. Harry McLemore; librarian, Mrs. B.C. Hyatt; choral director, Mrs. Paul Morgan; pianist, Mrs. Arthur Storch; parliamentarian, Mrs. Helen Hatch; historian, Mrs. W.E. White; auditor, Mrs. McDowell Turner; junior club counselors, Mrs. C.C. McNeill and Mrs. R.L. Gosnell.

B & PW Club holds workshop

A program workshop was held by the Hope B & PW Club at the Douglas Building on Thursday, September 14 with all committee chairmen in charge of arrangements. A buffet supper was served to 32, and roses were used as table decorations. Mrs. Bryan Jones of Little Rock was a guest, and Joan Woodward was welcomed as a new member.

President Charlene Wiggins led in making plans for the Southwest District Conference October 28-29 at Perry's Restaurant, and items such as tote bags and name tags using a watermelon theme were made by those at the workshop. These will be used at the conference.

The week prior to the conference, Oct. 15-22, is National Business Women's Week, and tentative plans were made for a kick-off breakfast on Monday, Oct. 16 and for a coffee at the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, Oct. 19.

The Club voted to sponsor a tea for fair queen contestants Monday, September 25 from 1:30 until 2:30 p.m. with the location to be announced. Next month's dinner meeting will be held at Perry's Restaurant in Perrytown.

Card night winners

In a setting of mixed summer flowers, 37 were served a chicken supper at the Hope Country Club on Saturday, September 16 followed by Card Night.

Winners at pitch were Mrs. Arch Wylie and Herbert Burns. At bridge Mrs. Jim James was high, and Bob Reagan was second high. Game prizes went to Arch Wylie and Forrest Hair.

Host couples were Dr. and Mrs. Sam W. Strong and Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Stewart.

Miss Cobb to wed Mr. Still

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cobb of New Martinsville, West Virginia, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Gigi, to Tommy Lee Still, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Still of Hope. Miss Cobb is a 1972 graduate of Magnolia High School in New Martinsville and will attend

Texarkana College. Mr. Still is a graduate of Hope High School and Henderson State College. He is presently employed as Jr. High Football Coach with the Liberty Eylau Schools.

The couple plans an open church wedding on September 30 at 2:30 p.m. in the Rosehill Christian Church in Texarkana.

DOOR PRIZES ARE ANNOUNCED

The P&S Antique Furniture Emporium in Hope announced the door prize winners of its recent grand opening door prizes: Mrs. K. Taylor of Hope won the coffee table and Mrs. Muriel Harper of Gurdon will receive the "furniture stripping job."

Mrs. Kinser hosts Bridge Club Monday

Mrs. Thomas Kinser was hostess for a local Friday Bridge Club meeting at her home on September 15. When scores were tallied, Mrs. R.E. Cooper was high. Pie a la mode was served for refreshments.

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Gap

A House Divided

RAP:
Ever since I can remember, my mother has taken me along shopping, to women's parties and other things she goes to without my father. I wondered why Dad would ask me questions like "Did you stay there the whole time?" etc., and then when I was about 13 I realized it was because he was so awfully jealous of Mom that he made her take me along as a "spy." Later, I asked her why she put up with it and she said it was the only way she could get out of the house.

Well, from then on I didn't go with Mom, except to showers where I was specifically invited. She'd drop me off at a friend's and pick me up later, then brief me on the way home so I'd know what to tell Dad. She did the same for me when I started dating, because he raised Cain about boyfriends and wanted me "chaperoned."

It wasn't right, lying like that, but if you knew my Dad, you'd understand it was the only way. He would go into such a mad fit, he wouldn't speak for days, and "get even" in crazy ways like breaking something Mom loved or tearing up one of her favorite dresses. Once he even gave away our dog, after Mom danced twice with the husband of a friend.

Mom kept all this from me as long as she could, but after she poured it all out, we tried to help each other.

Well, we got careless, and Dad found out. I was really with my boyfriend the night he "dropped in" to see Mom (and me) at a women's party. It was a wild scene, when we all got home, with him accusing us of terrible acts, and us finally telling him exactly how much we resented his jealousy and distrust.

So then he left, and it's been a week and he hasn't been back. Helen and Sue, I feel guilty saying it, but this has been the most peaceful week of my life, and I think Mom feels happier too.

This morning he called and said if we'd apologize and promise to straighten up, he'd come home. He doesn't even see he drove us into deceit. Neither of us has done anything we're ashamed of. He's given us a month to come crawling. Please what would you two say?—FINALLY FREE AT 17 FINALLY FREE:

If we felt as relieved as you and your mother apparently do, we'd say, "Don't come back, sir, unless you can leave this pathological jealousy behind or at least in the hands of a therapist."

You erred when you began sneaking to avoid scenes. Possibly it's too late now for a change, but unless your father makes a try, and you two will help, this family may be better off separated.—HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:
I'm a 16-year-old girl and have a great guy. We both agree we're not ready for sex—we want good clean fun—but my parents obviously think differently.

If I'm dressing and Jim arrives, Mom sends him into my bedroom (or tries to). If we're at a swim party, Dad nudges Jim, mentions my 36-23-36 figure and smirks "You could sure have fun with that, huh?" This makes Jim feel dirty, so he says, "I'm not that kind," and Dad says, "I just don't understand you kids!"

Or when Jim comes over to play cards, Dad says to Mom, "Come on Irene, let's go to bed so the kids can get on with their hanky-panky."

Honest, we don't want to. What's so uncool (to my father) about wanting to stay a virgin?—NICOLE

DEAR NICOLE:
You've gotta be kidding! But just in case you aren't jivin' us, here's a word to your folks: "Trot back to your own generation and stop playing the hip parents. This stuff makes no points with kids!"—SUE

DEAR NICOLE:
Sudden thought: Maybe your Dad IS kidding—like with reverse psychology that will keep your "No's clean," because you don't buy his embarrassing "Yes's" (Improbable, but then some fathers aren't too bright.)

...Or maybe your parents pride themselves on being terribly modern, when in reality they're just terribly unaware.—HELEN

"A FRIEND AT THE HOME OFFICE"

The most important job we have is helping you get the most for your health care dollar. One of the ways we do this is through our Consumer Affairs Division.

Consumer Affairs has two responsibilities, and both of them are to you. Their first is to make exactly clear the wording of membership contracts so that you may know the full extent of the protection afforded by membership in Arkansas Blue Cross and Blue Shield. The second, but most important duty of this Division, is to see that our members receive every benefit the membership contract was designed to provide.

Yes, you do have "friends at the home office" in our Consumer Affairs Division. They're "on your side." Because like all of us at Arkansas Blue Cross and Blue Shield, they want you to get the most for your health care dollar.

Southern Cal still No. 1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The powerful Trojans of Southern California appear in little danger of losing their No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press college football poll when they play Illinois Saturday.

The unbeaten Trojans retained their top ranking Monday in this week's poll following their 51-6 rout of Oregon State. At the same time it was disclosed that quarterback Mike Wells was a doubtful starter for the Illini.

Wells injured a finger on his throwing arm in last week's losing game against Michigan State. Without him, the Illini offense will be greatly hampered. As a result the Trojans will be favored more than ever to make it three in a row.

In Monday's voting the Trojans received 28 first-place votes and 920 of a possible 1,000 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Oklahoma Sooners opened their season with a 49-0 trouncing of Utah State and took over second place with 11 firsts and 840 points.

Colorado slipped from second to third with 769 points followed by Ohio State at 622 and Tennessee at 615. Rounding out the Top Ten were UCLA, Alabama, Louisiana State, Nebraska and Arizona State.

Penn State topped the Second Ten followed by Michigan, Notre Dame, Texas, Washington, Georgia, Florida State, Michigan State, Stanford and Mississippi. Stanford and Michigan State moved into the Top Twenty as Purdue and Arkansas dropped out.

In addition to Southern Cal at Illinois other games this week involving the Top Twenty are:

Oregon at Oklahoma, Colorado at Minnesota, Wake Forest at Tennessee, Michigan at UCLA, Alabama vs. Kentucky at Birmingham, Texas A&M at Louisiana State, Nebraska at Army, Kansas State at Arizona State, Navy at Penn State, Notre Dame at Northwestern, Miami, Fla. at Texas, Washington at Purdue, Georgia at Tulane, Virginia Tech at Florida State, Georgia Tech at Michigan State, Stanford at Duke and Mississippi at South Carolina. Ohio State has an open date.

The Top Twenty teams, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8, etc.

Robinson drills three hits to pace Orioles to victory

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
If there were an unabridged dictionary for baseball, you'd find a simple definition for "money players." The synonym would be "Brooks Robinson."

Baltimore's defending American League champions journeyed to Boston for the start of a must series against the Red Sox Monday night and Robinson gave them the jump, drilling three hits to pace a 5-2 Oriole victory.

It was a typical performance for the Orioles' old pro third baseman, who's always at his best in the clutch ball games.

Robinson had two singles and a double, scoring two runs and driving in another for the Orioles, now one game back of idle Detroit which took over the East lead. Boston is squeezed into second place, one-half game behind, while the idle New York Yankees remained fourth, 2½ games off the pace.

In Monday's other games on an abbreviated major league schedule, Cincinnati inched closer to the National League West crown by topping San Francisco 2-0. Pittsburgh's NL East clinching remained stalled with New York edging the Pirates 1-0. In the only other game played, Los Angeles edged San Diego 3-2 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's victory reduced the Reds' magic number to five while the Pirates' fourth straight loss left their clinching number at three.

"We're just in a position where we can't lose," said Robinson. "You've got to fight like there's no tomorrow."

The Birds were trailing 1-0 in the fourth when Robinson opened with a double and scored the tying run on Dave Johnson's triple. Two innings later, the Birds had the lead with Robinson's single helping build the rally and Johnny Oates' double driving home one run and two-out single by pitcher Pat Dobson delivering the other.

Two more runs scored in the seventh, one on Don Baylor's pinch single and the other on Robinson's third hit of the game.

Johnny Bench gave San Francisco a taste of versatility as the Reds shut out the Giants.

First, the Cincinnati slugger crashed his 34th home run of the year for the first run of the game in the fourth inning. Then, two innings later, Bench shifted to his short ball offense, dumping a perfect squeeze bunt down the third base line to score Joe Morgan.

Jim McGlothlin surrendered eight hits in the first five innings but his shutout was preserved by outfielders Cesar Geronimo and Pete Rose who both threw out Giant runners on the basepaths. Clay Carroll pitched the ninth to complete the shutout.

The Mets got five-hit pitching from rookie Jon Matlack to beat Pittsburgh.

Matlack, 13-9, outduelled Nille Briles, 14-6, with the game's only run scoring in the ninth inning on a single by Duffy Dyer. Rusty Staub, playing only his second game since June for New York, started the winning rally with a single.

Redskins topple Vikings in season opener

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Bill Mallinckh drew his National Football League salary chasing kickoffs and punts, charging the kickers and punters.

The seven-year veteran from Indiana, on the taxi squad last week, earned his paycheck Monday night as the Washington Redskins toppled the Minnesota Vikings 24-21 in a regular season opener.

Mallinckh blocked a punt, picked it up and ran for a touchdown. He recovered a fumble that led to the winning touchdown, and was on the field when teammate Ted Vactor blocked a field goal and deflected another.

"This is what a special teams' player always works for," said Mallinckh. "It's something that rarely happens. But if you get a couple or three a year the special team has done its job."

Mallinckh's touchdown came on Minnesota's first series of the game. The fumble recovery came on the kickoff after Larry Brown, who rushed for 105 yards on 21 carries, rolled in for a three-yard touchdown to give Washington a 17-14 lead with 12:52 to play.

Just 55 seconds later, Charley Harraway swept left end for a nine-yard touchdown run that put it away for the Redskins.

Asked why Mallinckh was activated just a week after he was placed on waivers, Washington Coach George Allen said:

"Because he's a good special teams man."

The Vikings outgained the Redskins 382 yards to 203 in total offense. Fran Tarkenton

Razorbacks work at kicking

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)

— The Arkansas Razorbacks worked "hard on the kicking game" as they returned to practice Monday after a week-end off.

Jim Hodge:

A converted quarterback

By CLAY HENRY

Jim Hodge doesn't pay much attention to statistics.

In fact, Hodge cannot even recall the number of passes he caught against Southern California, September 9.

Hodge, a three-year starter at split receiver for the Arkansas Razorbacks, had seven receptions for 127 yards, but the Hogs lost to USC, 31-10.

"I don't remember many good things from games we lose," he said. "I didn't block well on our punts in that game. We almost got one blocked because I didn't block my man."

Hodge came to Arkansas from Shreveport, La. (Woodlawn) along with quarterback Joe Ferguson.

An injury to John Rees, the starting split end in the first game of Hodge's sophomore season, enabled Jim to step in as a starter.

"I didn't start the Stanford game, but Rees broke his finger on the third play," he said. "There was only one more game that year I didn't start."

Hodge, who often speaks to Church gatherings, feels that his Christian experiences are an insight into football.

"When I go onto a football field, I feel that Christ is helping me give a 110 per cent effort to the Razorbacks," Hodge explained. "If there is one man that can give an example of Christian spirit, it's Coach (Raymond) Berry."

"Coach Berry is a tremendous influence on our football team," said Hodge. "Every one has great respect for the reputation he earned becoming a legend as a pass receiver, but he is admired even more as a man."

Hodge caught 50 Ferguson passes at Woodlawn, and each reception came his senior season.

Hodge and the Razorbacks return to action against Oklahoma State, September 23, in Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium.

wanted to attend college, and I felt the best way for me was an athletic scholarship."

"Coach (A. L.) Williams thought I had the ability to help the team as a receiver, so I did not hesitate to move when he gave me the opportunity my senior year," Hodge said. "I wanted to play, and I wanted to earn a scholarship. I really didn't dream I would have an opportunity to play for a team like Arkansas, and I was thrilled to death when Coach (Frank) Broyles offered me a grant-in-aid."

Hodge was Arkansas' second leading receiver last year with 30 catches for 473 yards. He caught 16 for 397 his sophomore season.

His performance against USC was an individual best for yards receiving (127) in a game, and equaled the seven catches he had against SMU in the 1970 Homecoming game.

Hodge and the Razorbacks return to action against Oklahoma State, September 23, in Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium.

How Hank Greenberg became first $100,000 ballplayer

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (NEA)—The Racquet Club in the languorous midday sun of the tropical Caribbean is the most unlikely place to find out the truth about Henry (Hank) Greenberg. Hank Greenberg is a daily tennis player who at the age of 60 made the sports pages of the New York Times and UPI by beating an out-of-shape writer. And this was an impromptu rematch in the island sun, followed by a healthy swig of fruit juice.

This was when Hank revealed the truth.

"I was," he said, "the original $100,000 ball player."

In these troubled times when Vida Blue strives to rise above a paltry $50,000, the $100,000 plateau means elite acceptance—no matter what the sport. Henry B. Greenberg reached it exactly a quarter of a century ago.

At the time he was a fading baseball player of 36 who had forfeited four and a half of the best years of his life to World War II. No longer would it be possible for him to hit 58 home runs, as he had done in 1938, for the Detroit Tigers. He had been waived through the American League and peddled to the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1947. Hank, with the Detroit organization since he was a high school kid in the Bronx, read about it in the papers and was crushed. He was going to retire.

The Pirates had just been purchased by John Galbraith, that gentle millionaire breeder of horse flesh. Mr. Galbraith called Hank personally.

Hank said, "I'm too old to ride trains any more."

"You can travel alone by plane from city to city," said Galbraith.

"I've reached the stage when I wouldn't want a roommate," said Hank. Galbraith said he could "room alone."

"But your ball park is tough for a right-hand hitter."

"Don't worry," said Galbraith. "We'll change it any way you want. Just tell us where to put the fences." (And so was created Greenberg Gardens in the old Forbes Field.)

Now piqued, Hank wondered about salary. Galbraith mentioned $40,000 and offered as a gesture two horses from his farm for Hank's wife, the former Carol Gimbel, who was building a racing stable.

Hank shrugged aside the horses and said, "I'm thinking of the future, that some day I'd like to own a baseball team."

So to seal the deal, Galbraith offered a piece of the Pirates. Greenberg bought $137,000 worth of stock. At the end of the season, as agreed, Galbraith bought back the stock for $197,000.

That meant a profit to Hank of $60,000 on which he paid only a capital gains tax of 25 per cent, plus the $40,000 in straight salary, and presto you had the sport's first $100,000 player.

From that start has been built the post-baseball fortune of Henry B. Greenberg, who lives just off Park Avenue and has a ticker tape installed in his own home and takes weekends off to play tennis in Montego Bay.

He went from a Bronx kid with a 10-cents-a-week allowance (a nickel for the Saturday afternoon movie) to Hall of Fame baseball star to baseball executive to major league owner to his current life as a personal investment man.

For when that 1947 season at 100 Gs was over, Hank recognized the physical inevitable, despite the 25 homers he hit for the Pirates, and officially retired.

After watching a World Series game that fell in Yankee Stadium, he was walking through the right field exit when Bill Veck hobbled alongside, introduced himself and made a dinner date. At 4 o'clock in the morning at Toots Shor's, Hank became a vice-president of the Cleveland Indians and later engineered the purchase of the Chicago White Sox with Veck.

(They got the club for $5 million, which included $2 million in cash in the club treasury, later sold the park for $3½ million and finally unloaded the club in 1962 for more than $9 million.)

Hank left baseball in 1963 after staying around just long enough to get the new White Sox owners launched. He is his own man. Occasionally, there have been flickers of interest in getting back. He checked out the Yankees as a possible purchase for Veck and decided they were a poor investment risk at the rate they were losing money.

"The trouble with baseball," said Hank, "is the ridiculous owners. Long before the Giants and Dodgers, I suggested at an American League meeting in New York we move the teams to the west coast. Old Clark Griffith, sitting there with his hat on and coat collar around his neck, said, no, it was too cold out there. How'd he know? He once pitched for Portland. When was that? In 1906. Had he been back since? No."

So Hank putters contentedly with the stock market, wears a perennial tan and, oh yes, he still beats indigent writers at tennis. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

House OKs extra funds for military

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an endorsement of the so-called Nixon Doctrine, the House Appropriations Committee has approved an extra $481 million for military aid and an over-all foreign-programs bill totaling $4.3 billion.

The committee said it felt the $481-million boost over last year's military-aid level was justified because President Nixon's policies had saved money and GI lives by bringing about troop reductions abroad.

The military-aid boost and an extra $526.6 million for international-development loan funds were the biggest increases in a bill $1 billion higher than last year's but still $667.9 million below Nixon's requests.

The bill includes $2 billion for military aid, $1.2 billion for economic aid and $81 million for the Peace Corps for the fiscal year which started last July 1.

House action on the bill is scheduled Thursday.

The committee quoted Asst. Secretary of State Marshall Green as saying the effort to turn the Vietnam war over to South Vietnamese troops and withdraw some 500,000 U.S. troops has saved $22 billion a year.

This is the "peace dividend" that has been more than offset by higher non-Vietnam defense spending.

The committee also quoted Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird as saying that reduction of U.S. forces in Korea to 43,000 from 63,000 has saved $500 million over the past five years.

The increase this year for development-loan funds included $320 million for the International Development Association (IDA) compared to none last year and an additional $206.6 million for the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), making a total of $418.4 million for the bank this year.

The IDA advances development credit to poor countries and gives them 50 years to repay it. The IDB makes loans to Latin American countries.

The committee criticized the continuation of U.S. aid to countries which expropriate U.S. property, such as Chile, but it did not recommend the aid be halted.

Besides funds for foreign aid and the Peace Corps, the $4.3-billion bill includes $738 million for the IDA and IDB, $145 million for Cuban refugee relief, $50 million for Soviet Jews settling in Israel.

Fishermen are complaining that the Game & Fish Commission's newly-built boat ramp at Allen's Ferry on Little River is unusable, and these pictures, made Sunday, Sept. 10, explain why.

ILWU endorses Demo ticket in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Citing Sen. George McGovern's pledge to abolish wage controls if elected, the executive board of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union — whose 50,000 members saw the Pay Board slash a wage boost won through a bitter strike—has endorsed the Democratic presidential ticket.

In a statement urging members to "bring about the defeat of the Nixon administration," the ILWU's international executive board said Monday. "The board believes the election of McGovern-Shriver as against another four years of the Nixon administration will be of benefit to the overwhelming majority of American people."

"Four years of Richard Nixon in the White House have resulted in wage controls which have severely limited the gains of millions of trade unionists," the board said.

The board also criticized the Republican administration for sponsoring a bill passed by Congress during the 134-day West Coast dock strike last February which empowered the President to halt the walkout and impose compulsory arbitration.

The ILWU statement did not mention McGovern's vote in favor of that bill, which the Senate passed 79-3.

The statement also cited Nixon for "not keeping his promise of ending the war in Vietnam ... removals of U.S. ground forces in Vietnam are accompanied by increases in air forces in Laos and Thailand and great increases in naval forces."

Soviet track repair train outmatches anything in US

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has a behemoth track repair train that can rip up and fix a mile of rails and roadbed in four hours, which outmatches anything in this country, says John W. Ingram, Federal Railroad Administration chief.

The Russians can rip up a mile of track, repair it and replace it with only a four-hour shutdown of rail service, Ingram said Monday.

In the process they use equipment unmatched in size and capability in this country, including huge electronic electromagnets that yank the tracks up by their roots—ties and all, he said.

Ingram visited several Russian cities with a 10-man delegation of U.S. railroadmen and government rail experts.

"The Russian approach to track maintenance is very simple," Ingram said.

"The track is pulled up by magnets, cut up in pieces, and hauled to a place where they dry clean it and press it, and then haul it back."

"The repair train stretches over a mile. There are about 10 sections to it, some holding new rails, some picking up old, and a unit big as a couple of 100-ton tanks welded together forming the track ripper-upper."

"The train picks up ballast, shoots dirt out through high pressure hoses, and lays down clean ballast."

"We are ahead on high-speed train operations, Ingram said. "They are ahead on track maintenance."

"This could be a basis for sitting down and solving problems together."

Nation's economy is still rising, reports indicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy, still on a strong upward path, may top the Nixon administration's official forecast made in January, government reports indicate.

The Federal Reserve Board supplied evidence of continuing economic expansion Monday, reporting that its index of industrial production rose 0.5 per cent in August after a 0.3-per cent gain a month earlier. The index is regarded as one of the most sensitive indicators of the economy.

On Capitol Hill, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz disclosed that the administration had revised upward its 1972 economic forecast. Gross National Product, the output of the nation's goods and services, is expected to grow $7 billion higher than forecast in January, Shultz said.

If so, this means that GNP, the broadest measure of the economy, will grow by more than $100 billion this year and make 1972 one of the best years for the economy.

Shultz's report said that GNP is expected to average $1.152 trillion this year, compared with $1.145 trillion estimated in January.

As for industrial production, the board said its index moved up 8.2 per cent higher than a year earlier to 114.3 per cent of the 1967 average.

The production gain was strongest in the manufacture of durable goods, but output in the mining and utilities industries showed some decline.

The board's report also showed that the central bank is continuing its policy of expanding the nation's money supply to accommodate the economic growth. In August, the money supply increased at an annual rate of 6 per cent, slower than the July rate but still a fairly strong growth.

In July, the board disclosed only Monday, the Federal Reserve's Open Market Committee decided to influence the money market enough to keep short-term interest rates from falling too sharply because of international developments. This was in response to a money crisis overseas precipitated by a large accumulation of dollars by foreign central banks.

Bahamians elect a new government

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamians elect a new government today after a campaign marred by violence and fought over the issues of independence from Britain and a faltering economy.

At stake is the fate of the first black Bahamian government in history and the 700-island nation's future course in foreign affairs, its own defense and the attraction of foreign investments.

Voters decide whether to return Prime Minister Lyndon O. Pindling and his Progressive Liberal Party to office or give the Free National Movement — a combination of dissident PLP members and the old white-dominated United Bahamian Party — the needed majority of 38 assembly seats to form a new government.

"The PLP has adopted an anti-foreign attitude which has damaged this country immeasurably," claimed Arthur Foulkes, a former Pindling associate who has become one of the administration's harshest critics.

Pindling, a popular black attorney from Nassau whose PLP swept aside the United Bahamian Party in 1967, admits to problems — employment is up, construction is down and investment is off. But he sees these as transitory, generated mainly by the uncertainty of elections.

While the opposition insisted on making independence an election issue, the PLP went full speed ahead with its announced timetable of a complete break in formal ties with Britain by July 10, 1973.

The picturesque islands dotting the Atlantic ocean off the Florida coast would remain within the British Commonwealth, but they would assume control of their own defense and foreign affairs.

The leader of the Free National Movement, Cecil Wallace Whitfield, argued that independence should not be considered at least until another general election is held. This could take five to 10 years.

A hotel on Cat Island used as an FNM headquarters was fire-bombed over the Labor Day weekend. In addition, there have been reports of other incidents of arson.

NEW YORK (AP)—It is fairly well agreed now that an individual or an institutional investor might fare as well by picking his stocks wisely and holding onto them as he would trading in and out.

Taxes and commissions — remember, every time you switch a stock you pay two commissions — contribute to this equalizing process. And quite likely also it can be shown that the frequent trader steers an erratic course.

But don't ever believe that the philosophy of buy-and-hold will ever displace buy-sell-buy. There is an enormous investment in short-term trading: millions of dollars, thousands of careers, hundreds of institutions.

In short, there is a powerful vested interest in active trading, and it is from this same source that most of the investment advice and trading theories emanate. It is the nature of the market.

You might wonder, for instance, why anyone would need to know that in 10 of the past 18 presidential election years the market has risen 10 times between Sept. 1 and election day and declined in only eight.

Moreover, in those 10 years the gains averaged 7.5 per cent and in those eight years the losses averaged 3.15 per cent. Or that the average for all 18 years was a gain of 2.79 per cent.

No need to wonder. Research not only is basic to an understanding of the market but it is the necessary ingredient of sales.

And so Wall Street, figuratively speaking, continues to study how many angels can be fitted on the head of a pin. Its own history is a treasure of gems in which the future can be seen. Good for sales.

But it isn't only "new" information that goads sales. Brokers live on commissions. They must translate the advice they offer you into sales to you or else they aren't earning their keep. It's the nature of the market.

Mutual funds have contributed mightily in recent years to short-term trading, although they usually dislike being so reminded. In their literature they offer professional management and diversity. But something more is offered.

Unpromised in print but widely suggested orally is the promise of performance, of quick gains via short-term trading. Performance, as it is called, is not offered by all funds. But some funds seeking quick gains, have turned over their portfolios 100 per cent in a year.

The stress of time is essential to short-term trading. It is the ingredient that activates need and greed, that excites one with the prospect of a quick killing. It makes a trader of the dreamer. Why dream when you can create your own reality?

Should the nation's brokers and institutions and publishers be blamed for all this stock market activity that many astute market men deplore?

Some people may blame them, but millions will continue to praise them. They relish the excitement, the hopes, the activity itself.

Boyleing it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Ancient Chinese emperors had a regal way of dismissing bad news. When they chose not to hear it, they simply put golden plugs in their ears.

You'd never guess what started America's great cold-rolled strip steel industry. Well, tradition says that around 1859 a new ladies' fashion for hoop skirts gave birth to it by creating a demand for flat wire.

One of the reasons wolves have survived is that their ears are so acute they can hear a man walking across a field a quarter of a mile away.

What is the healthiest period of life? Well, in most fields of sports men's strength seems to reach a peak in the early twenties, but the body is best able to fight off infectious diseases of all kinds between the ages of 5 and 15.

Some ice cube: The amount of ice in the Antarctic ice cap is so huge it almost defies the human imagination. If melted at a steady rate, it would supply enough water to keep all the rivers of the world full for 750 years.

Puffed-up kernels: The popularity of popped corn didn't begin with the movies. This native delicacy was enjoyed by Indians from South Africa to Canada before the white man came. The Pilgrims learned to eat it with sugar and cream for breakfast. Americans now eat 350 million pounds of popcorn a year. The product has been so improved by cross-breeding that 99 out of 100 kernels now pop, and an ounce of kernels makes a quart of popped corn.

Folklore: It is lucky to be the seventh son of a seventh son. Even numbers are generally regarded as unluckier than odd numbers. If you see a pin on the floor, you'll have good luck if you pick it up, bad luck if you don't.

Communist seize capital

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces have seized their third district capital in a month in the northern region south of Da Nang and occupied three hamlets in another district, military spokesmen reported today.

The gains were made in Quang Ngai province, the southern-most of five provinces that make up the northern Military Region 1.

Quang Ngai is under the heaviest Communist pressure since the start of the North Vietnamese offensive March 30.

For the fourth consecutive day heavy fighting swirled through the three southern districts of Quang Ngai — Mo Duc, Duc Pho and Ba To. North Vietnamese attacks toppled Ba To, and the South Vietnamese retreated to positions a mile southwest of the district capital, the Saigon command said.

The fighting also spread to Binh Son district, the northern-most district in Quang Ngai, where enemy forces were reported to have attacked and occupied three hamlets.

Field reports said Duc Pho was endangered and at last report was being contested with neither side in clear control.

Pressure was reported eased at Mo Duc by the linkup of an armored cavalry unit with government militiamen.

A communique from the Saigon command claimed that 346 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops had been killed in fighting during the past two days in Quang Ngai province. Government losses, still incomplete, were at least 36 troops killed and 41 wounded. The South Vietnamese casualties were expected to mount when final reports are in.

The fighting that erupted in the province Saturday has created thousands of new refugees, field reports said.

Earlier, Que Son and Tien Phuoc district towns, 50 to 60 miles northwest, fell to the enemy. Que Son was recaptured, but Tien Phuoc is still held by enemy forces.

In the air war, the U.S. Command announced in a delayed report that a Navy A6 crashed from unknown causes Sunday northeast of Hanoi and the two crewmen are missing. This raised to 99 the number of American jets lost over North Vietnam and to 106 the number of crewmen missing since the resumption of full-scale bombing April 6, the Command said.

Thundershowers cut the number of U.S. air strikes across North Vietnam Monday to 230, the Command said, with most of the raids concentrated in the southern part of the country far from the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

The Command reported that three U.S. advisers were wounded when the enemy shelled the South Vietnamese unit they were with at the district town of Tam Quan.

Special concert is set for Fair

Lawrence Welk's famous Champagne Music Makers will play one special concert on Sunday, Oct. 1, at the 1972 State Fair and Livestock Show in Little Rock.

Under the direction of tour bandleader, Myron Floren, the orchestra and other stars from the TV show will perform at 4 p.m. in Barton Coliseum.

"We're extremely pleased to have this great band at this year's Fair," E. M. Arnold, president of the Arkansas Livestock Show Association, said.

Among those scheduled to perform are Jim Roberts, Charlotte Harris, Gail Farrell, Jack Imel, Bob Lido, Joe Feeney and Guy and Raina.

The Lawrence Welk Show has been on nationwide television either on a network or in syndication for over 17 years. The orchestra with its accompanying troupe is known for its wide range of musical versatility and has made numerous recordings.

A featured tenor soloist, Roberts joined Welk in 1955 after just a one-night audition. Since that time, the Madisonville, Ky., native has appeared weekly on television and has established himself as a religious singer.

Charlotte Harris holds the distinction of being the only female instrumentalist with the Welk orchestra. With the band for over 10 years, she is cellist who has studied extensively and is a graduate of Northwestern University.

Known as "The Littlest Okie," Gail Farrell is a featured singer-pianist and often sings country music on the Welk Show. Originally from Durant, Okla., she is a former Miss Tulsa.

A member of the Welk troupe since 1957, Imel is featured as a marimba player each week. The Indiana native has appeared on numerous network TV shows.

Lido goes double-duty in the Welk orchestra as a vocalist and violinist. He joined the band in 1952 when the group was still three years away from national TV exposure.

A featured tenor soloist, Feeney is originally from Nebraska and is the father of eight children. With Welk for over 16 years, he was discovered through a nationwide talent contest.

Guy and Raina, popular husband-and-wife singing team, joined the Champagne Music Makers in 1969.

Foulups plague McGovern

CHICAGO (AP) — After a day of campaign foulups that reportedly left him fuming, Sen. George McGovern today endorsed the idea of tax credits for parents of students in private and parochial schools.

The move was seen mainly as a friendly gesture toward millions of Roman Catholic voters concentrated in the large states which the Democratic presidential nominee feels are crucial for his bid for the White House.

McGovern said he endorsed the "tax credit-approach" without proposing any specific plan.

Previously McGovern had said he was exploring ways to aid parochial schools without violating the U.S. Constitution's prohibition against mingling church and government.

McGovern released his statement on parochial school-aid before heading into a closed-door meeting with Chicago labor leaders. He also was to appear at a Catholic technical high school in a predominantly white, working class neighborhood in the northwest part of the city.

Monday, McGovern put in a 17-hour day on the campaign trail in West Virginia coal country, Ohio's industrial southwest and the rural southern tip of Illinois. But the nominee spent barely five hours of that time campaigning.

The rest of the time was spent fighting twisting mountain roads and city traffic jams, so that by late afternoon a highly placed travelling staffer was muttering "dumb! dumb-dumb!"

McGovern was described as extremely irritated after arriving in Cincinnati two hours behind schedule and so late that his interviews with local television newsmen missed the afternoon broadcasts. One station cancelled its interview altogether.

He got himself back on schedule by forfeiting a couple of hours of personal time he had planned in Cincinnati. His day perked up when he addressed an applauding, cheering airport crowd, estimated by local authorities at between 2,000 and 4,000, at Carbondale, Ill., site of the 23,000-student campus of Southern Illinois University.

But despite the warm reception, local observers said McGovern could have done better if he had waited two days until the start of classes at SIU.

And, as if to add insult to the day's frustrations, a St. Louis television newsmen mousetrapped McGovern into an unintended snub of Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate for governor of Missouri.

"Do you know the name Ed Dowd?" the interviewer asked. "Sort of vaguely," replied a puzzled McGovern. Then the interviewer explained who Dowd was. "If he's a Democrat, then I endorse him," said McGovern, quickly recovering.

McGovern spent the night in Chicago.

Truck driver's snakes are illegal

ST. CLAIR SHORES, Mich. (AP) — Truck driver Jim Mize said his bull snakes and boa constrictors are friendly and mild-mannered and he can't understand why they're illegal.

Mize, 33, is in trouble with his neighbors. One of them reported him to police five weeks ago and Mize pleaded guilty to violating a city ban on non-poisonous snakes.

He said he'll ask the city council tonight to amend an ordinance outlawing all snakes. Non-poisonous snakes, said Mize, should be legalized.

He moved to St. Clair Shores about three years ago, bringing his snakes, some lizards and spiders.

The snakes are locked in a temperature-controlled room in the basement of his home.

Eight neighbors have signed a petition saying they don't object to his snakes. The other neighbor turned him in.

Mize pleaded guilty to violating the snake ban, but said a judge deferred sentence pending council action on his attempt to change the law.

He uses the snakes in giving free lectures in schools and before groups of Boy Scouts.

His indigo snakes, king snakes and others aren't poisonous. Even the 4½-foot bull snake will stop biting in a few more months, Mize said.

Rev. W.M. Martin is pastor of Rising Star.

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

Perfumes cause him to suffer

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have an allergy problem. Perfume or any scented products worn by people set off such a sick headache that I am laid low. Keeping away from these scents is beyond my control, as I work in an office and at one time or another someone is "scented." Is there any medicine or injection that would help to ward off these sick headaches?

Dear Reader—Antihistamines might help but the side effects, particularly the drowsiness, leave a lot to be desired. Why don't you see a specialist in allergies and see if he can identify your allergy. Perhaps he can relieve your problem by a series of desensitizing injections. He will need to identify what is causing the difficulty and then inject small amounts over a period of time to desensitize you. You are not the first person who has had trouble with reactions to perfume. Sometimes they are more suffocating than sexy. Also, drops of perfume sometimes sensitize the skin of the individual to sunlight and lead to dark brown spots.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I was under the impression that one suffering from colitis had to eat a diet eliminating raw fruits or vegetables. My daughter has a colitis condition and gets medication for it. She must not be too far away from a bathroom as she doesn't get constipated but her bowels act almost without notice. In reading your column on refined foods I seem to be confused on what diet is suitable for her. Are there different kinds of colitis conditions?

Dear Reader—Yes, there are different kinds of colitis. The most common colon problem in the American population is constipation, which is often associated with low grade inflammation of the colon and passes under the term of irritable colon and also colitis. Individuals with this problem either have chronic constipation or sometimes intermittent constipation and mild diarrhea.

All of these individuals need more bulk in their diet, which means that they should be eating fresh fruits and vegetables as opposed to restricting their diet to refined foods which include large amounts of sugar and refined cereals such as cakes, pies and desserts. Water and bulk help in relieving their problem.

On the other hand, there are individuals who have "colitis" associated with fairly persistent diarrhea. There are several causes for this problem, and many of these individuals do not tolerate fresh fruits in particular. They may also have trouble tolerating corn and seeds with hulls on them like green peas, or mature bean seeds. Others have trouble tolerating ordinary milk and dairy products.

Some individuals have severe diarrhea usually as a limited episode due to an infection from any number of parasites or bacteria. Individuals with diarrhea are an entirely different group from those with the irritable bowel constipation problem, and the diet and treatment can only be determined by defining the cause of the "colitis" and even then sometimes it's difficult to treat.
